Parent Guide · October 28, 2026

Two Minecraft servers your child can play on from home, run and moderated by Affinity staff.

The servers, the cost and how to get on

The servers	Vanilla: a fresh survival world. Modded: All the Mods 10, hundreds of mods for machines, magic and exploration. One subscription or Membership covers both.
Who can play	Players 18 and under, on Minecraft Java edition on a computer. Bedrock, console and phone accounts cannot join.
What it costs	Free with Affinity Membership ($360 a year). Otherwise $10 a month or $108 a year per child, cancel any time.
1. Subscribe	Members skip this step. Everyone else emails hello@affinityesports.gg or asks at either studio for the checkout link.
2. Request access	Email hello@affinityesports.gg with your child's first name, age, Minecraft Java username and Discord username.
3. Play	We whitelist the username on both servers within one business day and email the server addresses and the welcome.
Setup	Vanilla: choose version 26.3 in the launcher and claim your base with a golden shovel. Modded: install All the Mods 10 version 5.5 through the CurseForge app and claim land with FTB Chunks.

The rules

Every player, and a parent or guardian, agrees to these rules before we whitelist a username. They apply on every Affinity server and in the Minecraft channels of our Discord, in text and in voice. Breaking them can mean a warning, a mute, a temporary ban or a permanent ban, and a parent hears from us when it goes past a warning.

- Be kind. No bullying, harassment, hate speech, slurs or threats, in chat, in voice, on signs or in builds.
- Keep it family friendly. No swearing and no inappropriate builds, signs or words. Admins are notified of everything written on signs.
- No griefing. Never break or change another player's build, and stay off claimed land unless the owner has let you in.
- No stealing, including from chests, item frames and farms.
- No cheating. No hacked or modified clients, x-ray, exploits or bug abuse. A cheat client gets you removed even if it did no harm.
- No personal information. No real last names, schools, addresses, phone numbers or social accounts, yours or anyone else's.
- One account, your own. Never share your login or let anyone else play on your whitelisted username.
- Listen to mods and admins, and report problems to them instead of retaliating. A screenshot helps.
- Staff decisions are final. The expectations we hold in the studio apply online the same way.
- On Vanilla: claim your base with a golden shovel so it is protected. The signs at spawn show how; pvP is off.
- On Modded: claim your land with FTB Chunks and add friends to your team to trust them on it; never set claimed chunks to force-load without permission from the server admin. The host has limited memory.
- In our Discord: discord is 13 and up under Discord's own terms, or a parent-managed account for a younger player; the same rules apply in the Minecraft text and voice channels.

Warning: A staff message naming the rule, noted on the roster. Mute: Chat or voice turned off for a set time. Temporary ban: One to seven days off the servers and out of the Minecraft channels. Mark writes to the parent the same day, with Kaohom copied. Permanent ban: Whitelist and Discord role removed, and Mark writes to the parent. A cheat client, threats, sexual content or sharing personal information can go straight here. When a subscription or Membership ends, the player comes off the whitelist and loses the Discord role seven days after the end date. We send one courtesy note first. Rejoining is one new subscription away.
